

Contents

1. Introduction.....	1
1.1. Anti-migrationism in a globalizing world.....	1
1.2. Turning the tide: aid and trade instead of migration?	5
1.3. The age of remittances	7
1.4. The migration and development debate	9
1.5. Migration and development research in Morocco	10
1.6. Aims and structure of this study.....	13
2. Migration and development theory.....	17
2.1. General migration theories	17
2.2. Transitional models: The mobility transition and the migration hump.....	26
2.3. Internal dynamics and feedbacks: networks and migration systems	31
2.4. Migration and development optimists vs. pessimists.....	36
2.5. Coming to grips with migration and development interactions	47
2.6. Human capabilities, development, and migration.....	61
2.7. Space, structure, migration, and development	66
3. Research questions and methodology	73
3.1. Problem statement and research questions.....	73
3.2. Methodological implications of recent theoretical insights	78
3.3. Research methodology	83
3.4. Problems encountered and appraisal of methodology	89
4. Morocco as a “labor frontier” country	97
4.1. Introduction	97
4.2. Moroccan migration history	97
4.3. Regional differentiation in international migration participation	109
4.4. The diffusion of internal migration and micro-urbanization.....	113
4.5. Migration and remittances as a national development strategy	116
4.6. Morocco as a labor frontier country.....	123
4.7. Conclusion.....	127

5. An oasis in a changing world	129
5.1. Introduction	129
5.2. Geographical introduction to the Todgha valley	129
5.3. Ethnic strife and spatial segregation	132
5.4. Population characteristics of the research villages	140
5.5. An oasis valley in a changing political-economic context	143
5.6. Regional development and spatial differentiation	147
5.7. Conclusion	154
6. The Todgha mobility transition	157
6.1. Introduction	157
6.2. Regional integration and transforming migration patterns	158
6.3. International migration in the post-independence era	160
6.4. Internal migration	171
6.5. Significance of internal and international migration in the research villages	176
6.6. Activities, migration duration, and return migration	179
6.7. Immigration, intra-valley migration, and demographic effects	185
6.8. Who migrates? The selectivity of migration	190
6.9. Discussion and conclusion	206
7. Household livelihoods, migration, remittances, and wealth	213
7.1. Introduction	213
7.2. Household migration typology	214
7.3. Household life cycle, migration strategies, and migration trajectories	216
7.4. Livelihood diversification, remittances, and income structure	223
7.5. The impact of migration on wealth and living conditions	230
7.6. “Partir pour rester”	235
7.7. Conclusion	239
8. Migration and agricultural development revisited	241
8.1. General introduction to oasis agriculture	241
8.2. Recent dynamics in water management and irrigation patterns	247
8.3. Land tenure and investments in land	261
8.4. Cropping patterns, agricultural labor, and cultivation methods	273
8.5. Animal husbandry and the role of migration	288
8.6. The economic role of agriculture in oasis livelihoods	292
8.7. Disparate migration impacts, constraints, and the water crisis	295
8.8. Conclusion	302

9. Migration, non-agricultural investments, and education.....	305
9.1. Introduction	305
9.2. Migration and investments in housing	306
9.3. Migrant entrepreneurs: Survivors and batrooms	317
9.4. Obstacles to investments	324
9.5. Migration, education, and development.....	325
9.6. Synthesis of temporal and sectoral allocation of investments	338
9.7. Conclusion.....	340
10. From oasis to paradise.....	343
10.1. The role of migration in socio-cultural change	343
10.2. Migration and new patterns of socio-cultural stratification	344
10.3. From oasis to paradise ... A culture of migration.....	349
10.4. Migration and gender relations	355
10.5. Migration, power, and institutional change.....	364
10.6. Conclusion.....	370
11. Conclusions.....	373
11.1. Evolution and causes of migration from the Todgha	373
11.2. Migration as a strategy to diversify and improve livelihoods.....	377
11.3. Migration and investments	379
11.4. Migration and economic-geographical transformations	382
11.5. Migration and socio-cultural change.....	386
11.6. Structural constraints to migration and development.....	390
11.7. Synthesis and discussion	393
References.....	399
Appendix 1. Key concepts and definitions.....	414
Appendix 2. Statistical notes	417
Appendix 3. Glossary.....	418
Samenvatting.....	422

List of tables

Table 2.1. Relation between household migration stage, consumption, and investments.....	55
Table 4.1. Estimates of population of Moroccan descent living outside Morocco (1998-1999)	108
Table 5.1. General characteristics of the research villages and the Ghallil plain.....	141
Table 5.2. Public amenities and sanitary facilities in the municipalities of the Todgha (1994).....	151
Table 5.3. Sanitary facilities in the research villages (1999).....	151
Table 5.4. Years of establishment of secondary schools in the Todgha valley (2000)	152
Table 5.5. Approximate distance to services, facilities, and isolation index, by village	152
Table 5.6. Index of wealth indicators at household level by village	153
Table 6.1. Mode of recruitment of international migrants by period of departure	162
Table 6.2. International migrants as percentage of the total population (1954-1998).....	162
Table 6.3. Period of departure of international migrants by village.....	166
Table 6.4. Destination of current and returned international labor migrants by period of departure.....	167
Table 6.5. Destination country of currently abroad and returned migrants by village	168
Table 6.6. Length of stay abroad of current and returned international migrants	169
Table 6.7. Main destinations of current and returned internal migrants.....	173
Table 6.8. Destinations of internal migrants by year of departure	174
Table 6.9. Destination of current internal migrants by village.....	175
Table 6.10. Migrants as percentage of the total and active male population, by village.....	177
Table 6.11. Professions of internal, non-seasonal migrants from the Todgha (1954).....	179
Table 6.12. Current primary activity of males (16-65) by migration status (1999)	180
Table 6.13. Primary activity of current internal migrants (all ages) by migration destination.....	181
Table 6.14. Number of months of absence during last year of migration	183
Table 6.15. Total migration duration of internal and international migrants	183
Table 6.16. Population growth in the municipalities of the Todgha (1952-2000)	187
Table 6.17. General demographic characteristics of the Todgha (1994).....	188
Table 6.18. Age structure of research villages including labor migrants (1999)	189
Table 6.19. Participation in internal migration by ethnic group (1954 and 1975)	192
Table 6.20. Gender and independent migration participation	197
Table 6.21. Age on departure of international labor migrants by period of departure	198
Table 6.22. Age on departure of internal migrants by period of departure	198
Table 6.23. Current age of current international and internal migrants.....	199
Table 6.24. Educational level by migration status of men older than 15 years.....	200
Table 6.25. Educational level by migration status of men older than 15 years, excluding students and ex-student migrants.....	201

Table 6.26. Educational level by migration status of men older than 15 years, without students and ex-students, within age groups	202
Table 6.27. Educational level by migration destination of men older than 15 years, excluding students and ex-students, by period of departure.....	202
Table 6.28. Landlessness before migration by household migration status, by village	204
Table 6.29. Land possession before migration by household migration status	205
Table 6.30. Land possession of household before migration by period of departure of international migrants.....	205
Table 7.1. Household migration categories based on migration participation of members	214
Table 7.2. Migration participation at the household level by research village.....	216
Table 7.3. Marital status of current internal and international migrants	217
Table 7.4. Position within household by migration status of individuals above 15 years.....	217
Table 7.5. Household size by household migration status	221
Table 7.6. Nuclear and extended household structure by household migration status.....	222
Table 7.7. Age of the household head by household migration status	223
Table 7.8. Number of adults within household by household migration status	223
Table 7.9. Degree of livelihood diversification by household migration status.....	224
Table 7.10. Economic activities by household migration status	225
Table 7.11. International remittances by household migration status	226
Table 7.12. Internal remittances by household migration status	226
Table 7.13. Sources of income by household migration status	227
Table 7.14. Total monthly cash household income by household migration status	228
Table 7.15. Income composition and income level by household migration status	229
Table 7.16. Index of wealth indicators by household migration status	230
Table 7.17. Living conditions by household migration status.....	232
Table 7.18. Household wealth by length of stay abroad of international migrants	234
Table 7.19. Living conditions by length of stay abroad of international migrants.....	234
Table 7.20. Daily consumption expenses by household migration status	234
Table 8.1. Valley-level nuba before and after independence	252
Table 8.2. Repartition of the irrigated surface by irrigation modes (1996).....	256
Table 8.3. Possession of pumps by household migration status.....	257
Table 8.4. Investments in pumping by household migration status	258
Table 8.5. International migrant households' investments in pumping by length of stay abroad	260
Table 8.6. Investments in pumping by international migration participation, by household income	261
Table 8.7. Legal status of agricultural land (1996).....	262
Table 8.8. Size of agricultural holding by municipality (1996)	263
Table 8.9. Size of agricultural holding in traditional oasis by village.....	263
Table 8.10. Size of agricultural holding outside village territory by village.....	264

Table 8.11. Total land possession outside village territory by location	264
Table 8.12. Investments in land purchase by household migration status.....	268
Table 8.13. Location of purchased land by household migration status	269
Table 8.14. International migrant households' investments in land by length of stay abroad	270
Table 8.15. Investments in land by international migration participation, by household income.....	270
Table 8.16. Number of annual crops by household migration status	281
Table 8.17. Agricultural capital inputs by household migration status	284
Table 8.18. Agricultural capital inputs by international migration participation, by household income.....	284
Table 8.19. Employment of paid agricultural laborers and ikhmmesen by international migration participation, by household income	287
Table 8.20. Livestock numbers in all research villages (1994 and 1999)	289
Table 8.21. Number of goats by household migration status	290
Table 8.22. Number of sheep by household migration status	290
Table 8.23. Number of cattle by household migration status	290
Table 8.24. Possession of cattle by international migration participation, by household income.....	291
Table 8.25. Expenses on fodder by household migration status.....	292
Table 8.26. Market value of agricultural produce by household migration category.....	293
Table 9.1. Investments in housing by household migration status	310
Table 9.2. Investments in housing by international migration participation, by household income	311
Table 9.3. Length of stay abroad and investments in housing	311
Table 9.4. Number of houses outside the ighrem by household migration status	312
Table 9.5. Spatial allocation of housing investments	312
Table 9.6. Investments in housing in and outside village by household migration status.....	313
Table 9.7. Investments in private enterprises by household migration status	318
Table 9.8. Investments in private enterprises by international migration participation, by household income.....	319
Table 9.9. Location of investments by type of private enterprises.....	320
Table 9.10. Incidence of investments and average invested amounts by household migration category (1975-1998).....	320
Table 9.11. Spatial allocation of investments in private enterprises	322
Table 9.12. Investments in commercial enterprises by village.....	323
Table 9.13. Investments in enterprises by length of stay abroad of international migrants	324
Table 9.14. Gender-specific illiteracy and school enrollment rates (Todgha, 1994).....	327
Table 9.15. Gender-specific illiteracy and school enrollment rates in the research villages.....	327
Table 9.16. Educational level by household migration category, within age groups	329
Table 9.17. Education by international migration participation by household income, by age	332
Table 9.18. Educational levels by international migration participation, by sex and age	333

Table 9.19. The propensity of household members to study by age group by household migration categories, by sex	336
Table 9.20. Unemployment rates by educational level, by household migration status.....	337
Table 9.21. Sectoral preference of investments by household migration category	339
Table 10.1. Age differential between male and female spouses by international migration participation, by age household head	358
Table 10.2. School enrollment and age of marriage, by village.....	359

List of figures

Figure 1.1. Annual number of migrants from “South” to “North” (1960-1989).....	2
Figure 1.2. Official remittance and aid flows to developing countries (1991-1999)	9
Figure 2.1. The effect of development on migration patterns according to transitional models	30
Figure 2.2. Conceptual framework of the “migrant syndrome”	44
Figure 2.3. Conceptual framework of pluralist migration and development interactions (short to medium- term).....	65
Figure 2.4. General conceptual framework of recursive migration-development interactions	69
Figure 4.1. Return migration from France, the Netherlands, Belgium, Germany, and Denmark to Morocco 1984-1995)	104
Figure 4.2. Expansion of population of Moroccan descent in Western Europe, specified for France (1965-2001)	105
Figure 4.3. Expansion of population of Moroccan descent in main destination countries outside France (1965-2001).....	106
Figure 4.4. Rural and urban population growth Morocco (1900-2000)	114
Figure 4.5. Total volume of official remittance, ODA, and FDI flows to Morocco (1968-2000)	120
Figure 4.6. Value of remittances, total exports, total imports, and major export products (1981-2001)	122
Figure 5.1. Schematic ethnic and resource map of the Todgha valley	134
Figure 5.2. Population development of the Todgha and municipalities, 1885-1994.....	148
Figure 5.3. Diffusion of telephones, televisions, videos, and satellite dishes in the research villages	154
Figure 6.1. Year of departure and return of “primary” international labor migrants	164
Figure 6.2. Country of residence of international labor migrants from the Todgha valley (1954-1999)	168
Figure 6.3. Absolute and relative number of international labor migrants (1954-1998).....	170
Figure 6.4. Age on return of internal and international return migrants.....	184
Figure 6.5. Age pyramid of research population and labor migration (1999).....	189

Figure 6.6. Year of departure of international migrants within main ethnic groups	191
Figure 6.7. Year of departure of first international migrant within main ethnic groups	192
Figure 6.8. Year of departure of internal migrants within main ethnic groups	193
Figure 6.9. Lorenz curves for participation in international migration at lineage (ighs) level before and since 1980	195
Figure 6.10. Average age on departure of internal and international migrants by decade	197
Figure 6.11. Age and migration participation of men	199
Figure 7.1. Ideal-typical household migration trajectories within the household life cycle.....	218
Figure 7.2. Proportion of men and women who are or have been married by 5-year age group	219
Figure 7.3. Mean income composition by household migration status	229
Figure 7.4. Household wealth index by household migration status, by village	231
Figure 7.5. Index of living conditions at household level by household migration status, by village	232
Figure 8.1. Structure of a khattara	248
Figure 8.2. Installation of motor pumps in research villages by period	256
Figure 8.3. Possession of pumps by household migration status, by village.....	259
Figure 8.4. Temporal allocation of land purchase among surveyed households.....	268
Figure 8.5. Percentage of households that purchased land by household migration category and village (1975-1998)	269
Figures 8.6. and 8.7. Year of installation in the Ghallil plain and international migration	272
Figure 8.8. Incidence of alfalfa and annual crops by village.....	274
Figure 8.9. Incidence of alfalfa by village and household migration category	276
Figure 8.10. Incidence of wheat and barley by village and household migration category	276
Figure 8.11. Prevalence of tree crops by village	276
Figure 8.12. Incidence of date palms by village and household migration category	279
Figure 8.13. Incidence of olive trees by village and household migration category	279
Figure 8.14. Incidence of almond trees by village and household migration category	279
Figure 8.15. Use of agricultural machinery, fertilizers, and pesticides by household migration status	282
Figure 8.16. Incidence of purchase HYV seeds and fruit trees by household migration status.....	283
Figure 8.17. Use of fertilizers by household migration status and village	283
Figure 8.18. The tendency to engage agricultural laborers and ikhmmesen by household migration status	285
Figure 8.19. Marketing of agricultural produce by households migration status.....	293
Figure 8.20. Monetary value of yearly agricultural production at the household level by international migration participation, by village	294